Planning for Non-Planners

Half-day course

Sydney is growing – outwards and upwards.

Urban growth and renewal is seeing green spaces and brown spaces being developed across the metro area.

Is your area or region undergoing these new developments?

Would you like to be able to have informed input into urban planning matters?

Are you confused by the endless jargon and technical nature of urban planning?

This workshop is ideal for community workers, community organisers and members of Resident Groups who wish to better understand the planning system.

Inner Sydney Regional Council for Social Development invites you to attend a free Planning for Non-Planners workshop facilitated by Professor Peter Phibbs from the Urban Planning and Policy group at the University of Sydney.
